THE NEW YORK TIMES, FRIDAY, JULY 31, 1987

U.S. Breaks Up Major Crack Ring in New York

York City Police Commissioner Benjamin Ward, District Attorney Mario Merola of the Bronx and several other law-enforcement officials attended the news conference at the United States Attorney's Office.

The indictment charged the defendants with racketeering, using firearms and money laundering, as well as drug distribution. They were said to have obtained millions of dollars in profits and to have transferred money to the Dominican Republic.

Dominican Company Set Up

Much of the money was sent to a Dominican company called Sociedad Comercial Financiera Provincias Empresarial, which was formed by a group of the defendants, according to the indictment.

In addition to [redacted], known as [redacted], the indictment named as the [redacted]

Of the 28 defendants named in the charges, Ramón Tejada, was found shot to death in New York City after the indictment was filed two months ago in Federal District Court in Manhattan, according to the authorities.

Arrested Buyer Cooperated

The joint Federal-state-local investigation of the case began a year ago after a buyer of crack was arrested and his car seized, the authorities said. They said the arrested buyer cooperated with the authorities, leading to the arrest of the seller and the expansion of the investigation.

The prosecutors in charge of the case, Gary J. Peters and Avraham C. Moskowitz, said each of the defendants could face up to 30 years in prison on the drug conspiracy charge and additional prison terms on numerous other charges, if convicted.

According to the detailed 54-page indictment, the ring began distributing cocaine in glassine envelopes in 1982, but switched in 1985 to selling crack in vials with the "Based Balls" brand name.

The indictment said the ring's leader used key lieutenants in New York City, while he lived in the Dominican Republic much of the time, "though he visited and to oversee the organization from there."

Robert M. Stutman, head of the New York office of the Drug Enforcement Administration, speaking yesterday in Manhattan about crack-ring indictments. With him were, from left, Police Commissioner Benjamin Ward; Bruce Baird, chief of narcotics in the United States Attorney's office; Dennison Young Jr., Deputy United States Attorney, and Mario Merola, the Bronx District Attorney.
